Saturday 5 July 2014

Dear BCSFans:

I am trying my best to get caught up with the unending flow of fanzines that come my way. And, you're next! I have here BCSFazine 493, and I will see what I can cook up on a Saturday night.

The local first...Not going to Detcon 1, the Detroit NASFiC, just down Highway 401 from us. And, not going to Spokane for the 2015 Worldcon. Yes, we are working now. I start my sixth week at Transcontinental Media, and Yvonne starts her fourth week at Crown Wallpaper, both on Monday. However, we had to borrow from our investments and our savings to get by, so now, it is time to pay them back, and we don't expect to have everything repaid for another year or so. Except for the Montréal bid, which doesn't look like it has any traction, we really aren't interested in any other Worldcon bids.

[I'm glad you've both found work and are rebuilding your savings. ☺]

We don't have any upcoming shows to take a table at for our steampunk wares, so we're taking the time to come up with new product lines, and see what we can produce for it. I'll take the jewelry tools, Yvonne will take the sewing machine, and we will see what we can come up with.

I will show how dated I am and say that the fiddler who had an extremely popular music variety show on the CBC was not Don Messner, but Don Messer. His Jubilee<sup>1</sup> kept the CBC's ratings up with old-fashioned fiddle music, old songs and good singing. I think both Anne Murray and Gordon Lightfoot were quite young when they guested on that show. And, poor Magnus Pyke, one of the most honoured scholars on British television...being on Thomas Dolby's music video ruined his career, and made his look mad, every so often barking, "Science!"

[Thank you for the correct spelling of Messer's name. Once I searched for that, I was able to find a lot more. Judging by Pyke's Wikipedia entry, his career was safe. He just had to learn to deal with people shouting "Science!" at him wherever he went. I wonder if James Burke ever saw Dolby's video and thought "There but for the grace of God go I!"]

I think this may be it. It's getting dark, and there are big but nebulous plans for tomorrow. Perhaps I can get this to you, and once you've got the next issue ready, you could send that to me? Well, that's how it usually works anyway. Thanks a lot, Felicity, and see you next time.

Yours,
Lloyd Penney

Hi Felicity,

This will be another random ramble through recent epical materials.

First, knee joint pain. I take chondritin and glucosamine. Usually they are sold together. Seems to rebuild the joints and that does away with a lot of problems.

This month's anime enthusiasm is Bamboo Blade. Teeny anime fangirl conquers the oddities with her shinai. Mostly emo girly stuff but no supernatural elements.

One Piece is building towards an awesome brawl as everybody converges towards the central factory under the arena. Episode 650+.

Snipped at random:

(Losing the Chance for Peace One Fuckup at a Time Dept.):

"As someone who spent six years enlisted (deployed '03-'04) and the last four on the other side, I argued with my instructors at BOLC<sup>2</sup> that COIN<sup>3</sup> operations are a joke and have never and will never work anywhere. They said that there had been four, say again, four cases of successful COIN operations in recorded history, so it wasn't just a pipe dream.

"My reply was that some people win the lottery and some are struck by lightning, so those things are not just a pipe dream either. This was met with the typical, 'This is the what the book says and you will learn it and agree with it.'"<sup>4</sup>

(Nyaah, so there!!)

Instead of looking down on gamers everyone should thank them for bringing wonder into the world.

[Thanks, gamers!]

End random snippets.

It turns out you're now on the watch list, if you weren't before. Various blogs have been IDed as Terrorists (and you can even buy the T-shirts). The Linux magazine being called extremists is a bit much.<sup>10</sup> Most Unix wizard types are odd, but if you read the man pages for 3000 built-in tools you'll probably wind up somewhat odd yourself. The Linux distribution fits nicely on 65 CDs making it a bit less challenging. I can hardly wait to see what the spooks make of Corflu and the "ilk."

So here's a challenge: make a positive sentence using government and the concept sanity without calling on the Sleeper in Ry'leh.

["Jon Stewart believes that government can make a positive difference in people's lives and once hosted a Rally to Restore Sanity"?]

If you want a bit of violence in SF fiction, check out Williamson at Baen Free Library. Highly entertaining as long as you're not overly squeamish about sex and violence. [Jack or Michael?]

Barring some anomaly the long slog up Omaha Beach playtest of Decision Games comp game D-Day Omaha Beach is over now. It's going to be interesting to see if the system gets applied further. There are quite a few Pacific battles in addition to more D-Day landings that can be modelled by this. Purpose designed solitaire hexmap comp games should have a willing audience.

Victory Point Games has a new 4X<sup>11</sup> out.

6 Mexican military helicopter crosses into Arizona during drug interdiction, fires on US Border Patrol agents in their vehicle. (Link.)

7 Justin Ross Harris left his one-year-old son Cooper in a steaming-hot car for seven hours. Cooper died of hyperthermia. Harris has been charged with murder based on some of his actions the day of the death as well as his Internet searches. (First useful link in Google search.)

Symetra is on Kickstarter.<sup>12</sup> Designer is from Austin, Texas but it's done in BC. Sort of a big hex tarot card set used for building influence and power. Is quite complex but interesting.

I've been reading about the medieval Inquisition. Also just found a book about the WW 1 after-invasion of Northern Russia by Canada, USA, [and] British Empire troops against the Bolsheviki, one of the latest from project Gutenberg.

It turns out Leland R. Erickson, the Finn who used to run Federation Armory selling miniatures, is now at Metal Express where they do Silent Death stuff.

Pictures this time are spacecraft and a couple of concept cars.

Warm regards,
Dave

The pictures are paper models. The starfighter started out as two paper Drakens. The original smaller one started out as an F92 in 1/72nd scale. The Darkstar and Bomb #20 are dear to the hearts of the Alien movie series fans.

Tuesday 3 June 2013

Hey there BCSFAns! Hot enough for ya? The weather is hotter than ever this July, and all us pasty skinned Left Coast types become big fans of fans in order to evade the wrath of the Sky God.

Myself, I have had some drama in my life. I applied for a writing program at VFS and didn't get in. My long lost sister Catherine came to visit for the weekend and we went to the Vancouver Aquarium. They have penguins now.

Re: Lloyd Penney and current SF:

I have never tried to keep up with current anything. Any time I have been current on anything, it has been entirely by accident. I don't have any biases for or against what is new and hip. Sturgeons's Law is absolute: at all times, most of what comes out is crap. It's true now and it was true in the past and it will be true in the future.

So I figure that the best policy is to look for the best of each era, and thus create a personal reserve of good art that far exceeds what one could derive from merely staying current.

And yeah, Lloyd. I miss Spider Robinson too. :-)

Well that's it from me this month. See you again next month, folks!

2 February, 16 March, 13 April, 4 May, 1 June, 6 July, 10 August, and 7 September 2014: VCON Convention Committee (ConCom) Monthly Meetings, 2–4 PM at Brandywine Bartending [School], 241 Union Street, Vancouver. “If you are on our concom, or interested in becoming involved with VCON 39, we invite you to attend our monthly planning meetings!

VCON is Vancouver’s premier fantasy and science fiction convention since 1971 and everyone who works to make VCON happen is a volunteer. We are completely non-profit and fan run. Lots of people volunteer a little of their time, usually at or just before and after the event, but some volunteers—the convention committee (concom)—are involved all year long and do the major lifting of planning and organizing the event. It’s these people that are the heart and soul of the VCON experience. So if you like sci-fi/fantasy art, writing, craft, film, costuming, or gaming, etc. and want to meet some new fellow geeklings, let us know and come on out! We’d love to have you in on the inner workings of our convention and be front row for the newest happenings in the world of the geektastic! Note: The location is all-ages appropriate as it is a bartending school with no alcohol on site. Meeting schedule for 2014: [...] Sunday 6 July • Sunday 10 August • Sunday 7 September—last regular meeting before the convention • Sunday 28 September—bag stuffing (time and location to be determined) • Thursday 2 October—evening Guest of Honour/concom reception (exact time and location to be determined) • Friday 3 October—morning Guest of Honour/concom breakfast (exact time and location to be determined) • 3–5 October: VCON! • Sunday 2 November—VCON 39 debrief.”—VCON via Jenni Merrifield

E-mail us for mailing or delivery instructions...Please keep your art smaller than letter-sized (8.5×11) so it fits on the scanner.” More info at guidelines webpage. We can discuss whatever folks want, plan nefarious plots, or just relax, hang out, and get to chat with one another. Costumes welcome but not required—dress as you feel comfortable! I will be at least steamily accessorized, since I have to work immediately beforehand. The only requirement for us to have this space is that everyone should purchase something at the coffee house. They offer teas, coffee, hot chocolate, and various cold beverages, as well as some baked goods.”—Keith Lim

12 July–2 August 2014: Chris Woods’ Star Wars-Inspired ‘Sandstorm’ Exhibition at Gallery Jones, 1725 West 3rd Avenue, Vancouver. “My [...] Star Wars-inspired series of paintings Sandstorm is set to debut [...] There is no opening reception. Sandstorm Artist’s Statement: Sandstorm is a radical new direction in my ongoing look at popular culture and its meaning within modern society. [...] In an effort to explore new facets of pop-culture, I have appropriated imagery and themes from filmmaker George Lucas’ original Star Wars trilogy, released between 1977 and 1983. This series consists of fourteen large scale, oil paintings on canvas. With Sandstorm I intend to re-examine the story of the Star Wars saga from the distorted vantage point of the primary antagonist Darth Vader. By recasting the main characters of Luke Skywalker, Han Solo and Princess Leia Organa as villains in Darth Vader’s mind I hope to demonstrate how the actions of individuals and organizations who lack empathy can lead to war, genocide and near societal collapse. [...] By assuming the perspective of Darth Vader I hope to examine how self-deception becomes a malignancy to the individual so virulent that it not only consumes its perceived ‘enemies’ but eventually itself. [...] I feel that Darth Vader’s final realization of the gravity of his crimes shortly before his own death urges us to realize that redemption and understanding are still possible even when faced with the darkest workings of the human mind. The paintings in Sandstorm are drawn mostly on scenes not seen in the original Star Wars films. By utilizing ‘deleted scenes’ found on Blu-Ray home video releases of the Star Wars trilogy, I hope to portray an alternate timeline that depicts the thoughts, nightmares, and waking visions that Darth Vader might have endured in his darkest moments. These images will illustrate what instills fear in Vader’s mind and will allow us a window on what motivates him in his ceaseless drive to defeat the Rebellion and its leaders. By examining the mind of this widely known fictional villain I hope to shed some light on the nature of evil that lies in wait in the real minds of our leaders and those who genuinely consider themselves our ‘lords and masters.’ [...] I feel that the ‘comic book’ sensibilities displayed by the Star Wars trilogy disguise very fertile ground for the exploration of the human condition and how good can slowly and stealthily evolve into evil in the human heart. I see Darth Vader as a most tragic and human figure that has many parallels throughout history and the history of art. [...]”—Chris Woods

News-Like Matter

Notes from June 2014 BCSFA Meeting

In attendance were Graeme Cameron (chairman/archivist), Barb Dryer (secretary), Kathleen Moore (treasurer), Ray Seredin (host), Felicity Walker (editor), Julian Castle, Joe Devoy, Stewart Smyth, and Sidney Trim.

Stew was dressed (in my opinion) like veteran wrestling announcer Mike Tenay when he does an interview.

We discussed public transit.

Graeme asked if anyone else had been to the Jimi Hendrix shrine at Union Street & Main Street. He said it was smaller than this room. He went in once, asking “What’s this about?” There was a guy making an aircraft engine noise with an amplified guitar. He said “I’m not the owner—Vince is.” Vince was a guy who, as a kid, had listened to Hendrix on the one hour per week of rock on Italy’s state-run radio. Vince later bought the property where the shrine now is and was going to tear it down until he found out the only original piece of it left—the kitchen—was part of Hendrix’s grandmother Nora’s restaurant. Nora was Canadian, as most of Hendrix’s family was/is, but Hendrix’s father married an American woman, so Jimi was born in Seattle. Black entertainers came up to Vancouver and while they were not barred from patronising white establishments, they were sometimes made to feel uncomfortable. When that happened they knew to go to Nora’s for soul food. Jimi spent much of his youth living with Nora, and often waited on tables to earn his keep. To a degree, Jimi Hendrix grew up in this neighbourhood.

Stew said something about Red Robinson, Nat King Cole, Satchmo and standing with luggage outside the Hotel Georgia in front of a “No Coloureds” sign. Graeme said before WW I a popular song sung in Vancouver bars was about keeping Canada white and pure, i.e. “free” of non-whites. Stew mentioned the apocryphal verse in the anthem “God Save the Queen” that says “the rebellious Scots to crush.” Graeme asked if Scotland has had its referendum on independence yet. Would they still use the pound, have representation in the Bank of England, and receive aid? It reminded Sid of Quebec.

Graeme said that Brazil does not get any money from FIFA—the rules say that FIFA is not taxable—and that FIFA forced Brazil to sell beer at the soccer games even though there was a law against because it fuels riots. I asked why Brazil would want to have the World Cup in that case. Graeme figured prestige, kickbacks from the beer company and other sponsors, but mainly, government money spent on facility construction mostly disappearing into pockets of organized crime and politicians, as happened with the Montreal Olympic stadium years ago.

Ray’s birthday dinner will be Sunday 22 June 2014 at ABC Country Restaurant in Richmond. Ray’s birthday is also Kathleen’s birthday but she has no plans.

Sid said that TOR (The Onion Router) randomizes the path for your data and encrypts it for you. The NSA hates it, and rumour has it that if you download the TOR files you automatically go on a watchlist.

Graeme said that CSFFA had its annual general meeting at a gaming store in Calgary. Why not at the Convention (VCON)? Because the federal government changed the rules for non-profits—you must have your AGM within six months of the end of your fiscal year. You also can’t promote yourself or solicit new members—that is now considered spam—unless you have previously received permission from the recipients to do so. Graeme will be asking for explicit permission to send Auroran Lights to its readers. The rumour is that this new law is to target the environmental groups that are a pain in the ass to the Harper government. Kathleen said, “Or organizations that might be tempted to switch to e-mail because of the postal rate increase.”

Kathleen added that almost all the money Mothers Against Drunk Driving raises has to be spent on more fundraising. The group wrestled with this concept for a while.

Ray said that as of 1 July 2014 the Conservatives can do whatever they want with the CBC. They won’t fire the current president because he has a contract until 2016, and it would be expensive to buy him out. The CBC has lost hockey and will have to get rid of Murdoch Mysteries and Republic of Doyle in the next few years, even though they’re ratings getters, because of the cost of making them. CBC is pinning its hopes on “Trudeau 2.0” to set things right after the next election. This reminded me of Just for Laughs’ Kevin & James on their search for the average CBC viewer. When they finally found him (played by Dan Redican), it turned out the average CBC viewer didn’t watch the CBC.

Angry rabbits.

Our paper cups looked like rabbits.

Graeme saw a cover of Xtra West with Godzilla and King Kong affectionately holding hands, so he clipped it and saved it for the BCSFA archives. This reminded me of Shyaporn Theeraskulit comparing the sizes of Godzilla and King Kong in “Up from the Depths” and saying “No way.”

Graeme said that there was a Babylonian or Assyrian king who was so interested in the past that he did archaeological digs, found tombs, opened and brought out artifacts, and started a museum with inscriptions on display. Some of what we have now, such as the Code of Hammurabi, comes from this collection, which was dug up in the late 19th century.

Regarding the CBC’s need for good, affordable content, I said it would be nice if BC’s local wrestling promotion, All Star Wrestling, could work out a deal to be televised on the CBC. Stew replied that we did have local wrestling televised from the 1950s to 1980s. Our NWA franchise had a live event Monday night at the PNE Gardens, then taped material Tuesday at the BCTV studios on Lougheed Highway in Burnaby—and the whole package aired Saturday afternoons. Gene Kiniski had the heavyweight title until 1967, then Dory Funk. André the Giant made an appearance here on his way up.

Graeme said he saw André the Giant wrestle at the Stadium—also Rowdy Roddy Piper, Haystack Calhoun (wearing only overalls), and Man Mountain Dean (dressed vaguely like a lumberjack). Stew said that Peter Gzowski once had Gene Kiniski and Harlan Ellison on the same couch! Ellison kept referring to Kiniski as “Kong here.”

Ray said that Ellison was a guest voice in a recent Simpsons episode—the one where Comic Book Guy meets a Japanese girl. Ellison is standing in line for the Radioactive Man reboot comic.

Stew liked the part in Ryan K. Johnson’s fan-film Star Trek: The Pepsi Generation (1988) where, due to a malfunctioning holodeck, the bridge looks like a late 1980s apartment. This reminded Graeme and Sid of Star Wreck: In the Pirkinning (2005), the Star Trek parody from the makers of Iron Sky (2012). In case you haven’t seen it, Graeme said, it’s available for download.

Stew asked, “Whatever happened to Teemu Leiisti?” No one was sure. He’s left BC. This reminded me of something Dale Speirs said about the Finnish language—Kathleen said “Suomi.” Stew said that John Dalmas speaks Finnish, and added that some of the names in Dune sounded like mispronounced Finnish (House Harkonen vs. the Finnish surname Härkönen).

Graeme said that Eddie Izzard is cool. He speaks several languages and has a routine about Latin in Latin that nevertheless manages to convey how amusingly imprecise, confusing and wordy Latin can be compared to English. Eddie did a marathon tour of 30 dates in 30 days in 29 countries. He always tries to do his act in the local language, but doesn't know the idioms, which sometimes makes the jokes fall flat, as in one show he did in Germany. Graeme added that Izzard's acting is good, too. I said I liked him in Mystery Men (1999) and Valkyrie (2008). Graeme said he would watch for Izzard the next time he saw Valkyrie.

Garth Spencer Starts New Facebook Group 'Heathen Geeks'

"Heathen Geeks" is my attempt to find and gather people in BC's Lower Mainland, specifically in Burnaby, who are interested in Norse heathenry and do-it-yourself religion and runes and all that there stuff. Are you interested? Do you know someone else who's interested? Please put them into contact with me!

Book Review: 'A Pound of Paper'

Brent Francis

A Pound of Paper: Confessions of a Book Addict by John Baxter, St. Martin's Press, 2005.

This isn't exactly an SF book, although it's partly a personal history of Fandom. But John Baxter's wild and wooly autobiography is so full of good stuff (SF and otherwise) I simply had to pass it on.

Growing up in darkest postwar small-town Australia ("the old joke 'Let's buy them a book—no, they already have one' actually had some social basis"), young Johnny B. discovered a barn full of old pulp magazines. Super Science Stories, Volume 1, Number 1, had this:

"Wherever you live, you are not alone...not if you read science fiction, not if you are a fan."

And the address of a group called the Futurians in Sydney. (Compare to now, when I can e-mail my friends in Vancouver, Australia and Upper Volta in one minute flat.)

And so his mad life story starts...from Outback cinemas (the manager's comment at the premiere of Creature from the Black Lagoon in Junee, population 5000—"it might be nice to have one paying customer in the place"), to the Australian Futurian society ("landlords sending anonymous letters claiming the SF magazines...

were communist propaganda”) to writing for Squire, the Oz rip-off of Playboy (“you might have a future in this business once you grow out of the science fiction crap”), and eventually professional bookselling, collecting of rare first editions, and entering the midnight world of Runners—book buyers who started work at 4 AM, when the Goodwill vans arrived, always wore second-hand clothing as a matter of pride and were—arguably more alien than most of the critters in spcaea opera.

As I say, the book isn’t totally SF, it’s mostly rare books, publishing and weirdos. But I find it irresistible, and (as you can see) compulsively quotable. My wife had to tell me to stop reading it to her.

And one more thing—he’s a master of the lost art of literary insult (not abuse—insult—the cutting phrase that shows a mastery of withering contempt):

—On James Blish—“An HG Wellsian visionary reborn as a modern Peter the Hermit on speed.”

—On publisher’s attitudes—“Don’t even suggest it’s Science Fiction.” “It’s just a label.” “So is leprosy.”

—On American book reviewers—“The stock phrase ‘I haven’t had a chance to finish your book’ means they haven’t read it or, probably, seen a copy. Possibly they may not know how to read.”

I’m biased—I love this thing. But give Pound of Paper a try—you may give up your Kindle yet!
