

The drawing to the right is part of a

TIM KIRK ANTI-POLLUTION POSTER

brought to you by ASPIDISTRA, the ecology-conscious division of the ENERGUMEN publishing empire. This poster, printed in beautiful clean black-and-white on 8½ x 11" cover stock, can be yours in exchange for 50¢ (cash only, please).

All proceeds will be sent to the Jersey Wildlife Preservation Trust, created by Gerald Durrell: a non-profit scientific trust devoted to the protection of endangered species. More than just a zoo, the Trust works to establish breeding colonies of birds and animals which might otherwise vanish completely as 'civilization' destroys their natural habitats.

The address, in case you want to write for more information, join the Trust, or drop in to see your favourite animal, is:

Jersey Wildlife Preservation Trust
Les Augres Manor
Jersey
Channel Islands
U.K.

The address from which you order the poster is, however:

Susan Glicksohn
32 Maynard Ave., Apt. 205
Toronto 156
Ontario
Canada.

To save postage costs (more money for the gorillas) your poster will be sent with your next ENERGUMEN Publications publication; the magazine will also provide protection from mauling by the Post Office gorillas. For speedier service, an extra 15¢ will provide immediate first class shipment, in protective packaging.

Please order a poster today. The brown pelican became extinct last year.

Maybe Man will go next.

Energumen 11 Tim Kirk Anti-Pollution Flyer
Original Colour Paper