Hi Felicity,

That was worth the wait. A tour de force coverage of BCSFA.

[Thanks!]

I assume by now everyone has heard of Sir Terry bailing out on us. I run into people all over who knew him from cons, from business, from hanging out with him. Quite a record of accomplishment to have left a good impression on so many over the years. He was a writer for people who love to read who never disappointed his fans. I will miss him terribly and I only read his books over and over again.

The Internet finds it own uses for things! In this case a bizarre kind of immortality akin to spinning a Tibetan prayer wheel.

I have a bunch of the Spaceways books. Didn't know Offut was involved. I think it was Playboy Press who published these.

[Impressive workrate! I sometimes write, and therefore sometimes follow the rule that "writers write," but I don't know enough craft to be the kind of writer who could handle any assignment thrown at them. I admire that kind of writer, though. The pulp fiction and B-movie industries thrive on that kind of writer.]

[When there's technology to increase our intelligence, I'll go for it. I hope we all go there together, so there aren't two separate cultures, one with superintelligence and one without. The superintelligent might develop their own dense new language, like psychohistorians, then be reluctant to slow down and translate it back into traditional text. That translation might be where us verbal types, who still have a sentimental attachment to the old language, fit in.]

This one is for the bad movie fans. You will have to search long and hard to beat this epic tale.

“The letter by 47 Senators and members of Congress trying to undermine negotiations between Iran, the United States and the 5 + 1 group is a pretty clear violation of the Logan Act:

“ ‘Any citizen of the United States, wherever he may be, who, without authority of the United States, directly or indirectly commences or carries on any correspondence or intercourse with any foreign government or any officer or agent thereof, with intent to influence the measures or conduct of any foreign government or of any officer or agent thereof, in relation to any disputes or controversies with the United States, or to defeat the measures of the United States, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.’

“Why isn't anyone asking about this and pushing for answers as to how this is not a violation of the law?”

Do you need some ideas for a dystopian scenario?

“The key to my prediction is the best way to interact with the brain is from the inside, from the bloodstream. Because if you inject tiny robots into the bloodstream they can get very close to all the cells and nerves and things in your brain, really close. So if you want to input information or read information, you do it through the bloodstream. [So] in theory you could load Shakespeare into your bloodstream and as the little robots get to the various parts of the brain they deposit little pieces of Shakespeare or the little pieces of French if you want to learn how to speak French. So in theory you can ingest information.”—Nicholas Negroponte⁴

I’ve been catching up on movies on YouTube. Lots of fairly good stuff but it takes some digging to locate. For some reason the title is clipped off so it’s a pain if you want to buy them later. However *Predestination*⁵ is a good take on “—All You Zombies—” by RAH and *A Sound of Thunder*⁶ is pretty good. One I did find quite interesting had the TV Hercules as captain and a girly superheroine who spent most of the movie running up and down the slickrock and sandstone of my misspent youth (northern Arizona and southern Utah) around Kanab/Fredonia. The scenery made a great alien Planet View for anyone else.

*Don't step on any butterflies.
You might create a timeline where we use "s" to pluralise words.*

[Was it Survivor (AKA Star Warrior—Survivor) (2014)?]

Unlike the SF movies of old, some of this new stuff makes sense, and the new special effects are getting better all the time.

On the anime front I’m watching *Kaze No Stigma*⁷ which is hard to describe as magic user clans battle evil spirits and each other with a lot of internal squabbles. I’m also about to cycle through *One Piece*⁸ again as I finally caught up with episode 684 on animefreaktv.com. They seem to be on a two week schedule now, probably because of the character density as everybody and his dog crashes into Do-flamingo and family. That’s just a guess.

You are all aware of C51⁹ and need to raise hell about it. These issues need to be mainstreamed before they finally get the television units installed in the bathroom for your own safety, otherwise you might have a moment of privacy.

I like to entertain obscure ideas but rarely endorse them whole heartedly because I read what Vilfredo Pareto had to say and from the historical record nothing has turned out to be completely right by a long stretch. Humans do have a nasty habit of spinning up whole cloth from a few tattered scraps, then trying to sell it as truth (for some value of truth).

As far as a cellphone for Lloyd Penney there are a lot of people working on getting him a decent one. Modular, extendable, and capable of fending off the nosy who think they should monitor everybody all the time. Not yet but the prototypes already exist. The media likes to “view with alarm” the idea that anything like that might be used by bad people (for some value of bad).

Silly as humans are they are perfectly OK with others hurtling past in metal shells weighing over a ton on bad roads. Most of that is a result of really bad educational systems. The advantage the SF community has is that they are capable of entertaining possibilities that others are incapable of. Are they better? The answer is yes in some ways, but we haven’t made a utopia yet.

The PTerry picture was snagged from a Discordian website, likewise the picture of Mike Johnson (Overweening Generalist) with RAW. I also found out they made a hardcover of the Principia Discordia red cover with gold lettering and claimed the CIA did it.

The rest are faery pics of some note.

Garth did a nice job on the history.

However 500 issues is a hel of a start in the right direction. I’m looking forward to 500 more.

Warmest regards,

Dave Haren

Dear Felicity, and all members of BCSFA:

Thank you all, for issue 500 of BCSFazine. Now, that should say it all. Did any of you older members ever think to see a 500th issue? Here it is, and many thanks to Felicity for putting it together. (The paper version of 500 arrived today!) And here comes a LOC that I hope will go into 501...

Disconnected oddity...that could be a button at a con. It’s gotten warmer here, but not like Vancouver and Calgary has! We’ve still got winter temperatures, while you are most of the way to summer. I still hope to make it out there to visit with you all one fine year. However, our big saving is for a trip to London, UK in 2016. We are going, but still have a lot of plans to make.

Comments on Ted Cruz, the one export Calgary will never brag about...he’s not worth the fuss. He is only the first clown out of the clown car, and there will be plenty more, all as ridiculous as Cruz, and some will be more popular and dangerous. He's the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Science and Space? I am sure he's entertained belief in a flat Earth...

Nope, Yvonne and I are still fully employed! However, we have learned that you should always be looking, no matter what, to stay aware of the market you are in. I recently found an interesting job I could have applied to...but I didn't, for it was offering half of what I am making now. Still, the hunt does continue, but for heaven's sake, hurry up, 6/49!

I would need to have a look, but I cannot think of the earliest issue of BCSFazine that I have. Possibly around 200 or so. Great covers throughout, I seem to recall the cover to 208.

I would think that most people who have run a club or a convention over the decades learn that people want a lot for a little, they want to see, do and buy something interesting and new, and want the opportunity to party with their friends. They also learn that over time, the general demands from a convention stay the same, but the specifics do tend to change here and there. I find that people want less to participate, and more to be entertained as they sit; more passive than active.

Some great names from the past...The Ether Patrol! The Leather Goddesses of Phobos! Sentient Zucchini! Cluart Stupor! So many good memories. I hope we're all making good memories today, and not just relying on foggy brains.

When our family moved from Orillia, Ontario to Victoria in 1977, I did find the club United Federation of Canadian Star Trekkers, and not long after its founding, in 1978, it planned to have its members go to VCON, 8 that year, I think. I was interested, not having gone to a convention at that time, but it required money, money I didn't have, and my parents were not inclined to give me a dime. Further along the article, Ad Astra was indeed the host of the CanVention and the Auroras in 1987, and to the best of my knowledge, never went after the national convention again.

A lot of local friends know about my interest in fanzines, but few share it. Newer friends, I haven't even approached them about it. They have their own fandom, and I have mine. I also have some newer interests to keep me occupied, so fanzines have to share my available time. I have a lot of newer friends, and perhaps I don't feel so old now.

[It can be hard to get people to read a zine, especially since fewer people read now, or don't read on paper. Maybe there's a zine gene, and if you have it, it's harder for you to not read a zine than to read it, and if you don't have it, it's hopeless.]

This has been a great issue, with some great retrospectives within it. A time capsule like this is good for older members, and perhaps a curiosity for those who are younger. They must understand somehow that these were heady times for us when we were as young as they are, and we satisfied ourselves with our achievements, and marked our time and activities. I don't know who will mark those achievements of ours in the future, so if none will recognize us, we must recognize ourselves.

I could wax poetic for another paragraph or two, but I won't. Congratulations to all of you for your achievement of club and social arena, and publications to keep communication, the true heart of fandom, going and beating. I look forward to issue 501, and I will see you then.

[Thanks!]

Yours,

Lloyd Penney

Wow, five hundred issues! I feel honored and privileged to be around for such a momentous issue.

All hail our faithful editrix, Felicity! And all those editors who came before her. There are not many things in this world that has lasted as long as BCSFazine.

[Thanks!]

Not including people, of course. After all, Felicity and I are pretty close to exactly the same age it is! (Sorry, people whom that makes feel old!)

As for myself, I gave applying to the VFS Writing for Television and Film course another try, but they are still stuck on that whole “no recent job or educational history” thing. Apparently talent and drive don't mean anything without some piece of paper that says I took some community college writing class.

Yeah, cause that will totally prove I am ready for an intensive one year course writing for TV.

Oh well, getting mad about it doesn't get me anywhere. Instead, I am planning to get an associate degree in creative writing from Kwantlen. The Richmond campus is pretty close to where I live, and it will only take around eight months (and $3000) to get it, so it should be doable.

The path of life often comes with detours!

That's enough from me this month. See you next month, true believers!

Dream vs. Disco Fury—Over the last six months Azeem the Dream has become the most hated man in All Star Wrestling. Last year he threw a fireball at both Disco Fury and Nasty Nate Daniels. This sidelined both Disco and Nate for months. In January Azeem the Dream tasted victory by retiring Gorgeous Michelle Starr. He even managed to win the Adam Firestorm Memorial Title in Vancouver after beating Mr. India. Now Disco Fury finally gets his chance at Azeem one on one in Cloverdale. The fans want justice and Disco really wants to get even. ⌘ ASW Ladies' Title—Riea Von Slasher (Champion) vs. Bambi Hall—Bambi Hall has beat all comers since losing the ASW Women's Championship last October. Bambi has had wins over Washington State Star, Sunni Daze, and up and comer Vixxen. Since then Riea Von Slasher has been in Las Vegas, Oregon, and throughout BC enjoying the traveling and wrestling life as a champion. Riea Von Slasher has dismantled all opposition since winning the title but now these two ladies finally get to settle the score on who wants it more! ⌘ ASW Cruiserweight Title Triple Threat—Matt XStatic (Champion) vs. Adam Ryder vs. The Great Kasaki—You can fly through the air with the greatest of ease. It's only the landing that's painful. Three cruiserweights at the top of their game but there can only be one winner. Folks you just have to see this live as you will be electrified! ⌘ Cougar Meat Collin Cutler vs. Jorel Nelson—Returning Cougar Meat Kid will be facing the new fan favourite Jorel Nelson. This will be a fast paced hard hitting battle and the winner of this match will elevate himself to the next level! ⌘ Tickets available: Central City Comix, 10221 King George Highway, Surrey, 604-584-2664; Comic Scene, Evergreen Mall, 8912 152nd Street, Surrey, 604-582-2877; or online! $20 front row and $15 general admission. <http://allstar-wrestling.com/>. News-Like Matter

Notes from January 2015 BCSFA Meeting

In attendance were Graeme Cameron (chairman/archivist), Barb Dryer (secretary), Kathleen Moore (treasurer), Ray Seredin (host), Felicity Walker (editor), Michael “Fruvous” Bertrand, William Graham, Stewart Smyth, and Sidney Trim.

We talked about hair colour darkening with age. Stew was blond as a child and now has brown hair, I was platinum blonde as a child and now have ash-blonde or light-brown hair, and Fru said his hair was “Ronald McDonald red” as a child and is now dark blond. Graeme said his hair was blond for about a year and then turned black.

Graeme will be reviewing Ray Bradbury’s zine Future Fantasia in his next Amazing Stories column.¹⁰ Early in his career Bradbury was briefly in favour of the Technocracy movement. I remembered reading a long time ago about the local Technocracy party—something about the leader being very proud of staying slim enough to fit into his uniform. Graeme remembered them too and said that their building, which used to be near the Telus building, is gone now. Sid added “About ten or fifteen years ago.”

Comedy class update: I didn’t make it into this year’s Stand-Up for Mental Health class. I applied too late and the class was full.¹¹ Ray said that the classes are 15 people each, and he’s in the alumni class which has 12 people. They’re making jokes about something called “rising toilets,” which surprises him.¹²

Ray watched “The Lion in the Living Room,” a Nature of Things episode about domesticated cats. Are cats intelligent? Fru said, “We have a hard enough time proving human intelligence, and humans can talk!”

Ray said that there are now transgender bathrooms on BC Ferries. Stew said that local human-interest reporter Mike McCardle (which I misheard as “Picardo”) is starting to look like comic book editor Julius Schwartz.

Stew noted that people are bringing scooters that are as big as motorcycles onto SkyTrain.

Also, on the Burrard Street Bridge a guy was riding a (motorized) dirt bike down the sidewalk and Stew’s friend, who was carrying bicycles, had to move! Stew said there’s never a cop when you want one, but when he makes a U-turn in the middle of the night with no other traffic around, the cops appear out of nowhere to catch him.

“Like Bill Cosby says, they come out of your trunk,” Stew added. Graeme replied, “Of course, you can’t put much stock in what Cosby says these days.” Stew asked, “Does that invalidate the good work he used to do?” adding that he couldn’t pick up a Norman Spinrad book for a few years after his tantrum at Norwescon 9 (March 1986). It was the year of the Halley’s Comet washout—while Spider Robinson was doing a Lord Buckley-style eulogy for Theodore Sturgeon, Spinrad was having an outburst about the panel being one fish dinner short. Steve Forty had met Spinrad earlier and had extended an invitation to VCON, but nothing ever came of it.

Stew also remembered Alfred Bester not being recognized and shouting “I’m Alfred Bester, damn it!” I said that in fairness to the convention, would you be able to tell if it was really Alfred Bester? I don’t know what he looks like either. Both Kathleen and I said that our mental image of Alfred Bester is Walter Koenig from Babylon 5.

Graeme said that Werner von Braun was the only SS officer ever to write a children’s book. I said, “That we know of. Roald Dahl could have been ‘Operation Pa-clipped.’ It would explain a lot.”

Fru said “The future is like now, but more so!” and Stew added “With tailfins stuck on!”

Sid said that when it comes to zero gravity, there are three types of people: they love it, they’re indifferent to it, or they can’t stand it for an instant. Chuck Yeager couldn’t stand it for an instant—he was riding a jet in a parabolic flight and was supposed to go through 90 seconds of zero gravity, and after two seconds he grabbed the stick. The people on the ground thought, “Wow, if Chuck Yeager can’t handle it, it must be terrible!”

Fru said it feels to those people like they’re falling in all directions at once. This reminded me of the time they brought a cat on the KC135. It kept rotating in mid-air, trying to land on its feet. Ray replied that they’re going to send a cat to the ISS. Sid and several others were reminded of the Space Cat series of books, such as Space Cat Goes to Mars. Fru recommended the webcomic Breaking Cat News. It’s about cats in a house that have a news network. When they’re meowing at the owner, they’re saying “Ma’am? Ma’am? Ma’am?” like a pack of reporters.

Steve's House

I have just watched them tear down my old house. Many from BCSFA will remember it. There were many BCSFA meetings held there, many parties there and of course my 35 BCSFazines edited and printed there (along with many other BC-SFAzines being printed there). Many VCON meetings had been held there, the art show boards were stored there (and refurbished) VCON equipment and supplies were stored there for many years, even a few picnics were held between the house and Como Lake. Bob Shaw even stayed there for a night after VCON 17. It is sad to see that house be torn down so that a monster 5000 square foot house can be built there. The house was in fairly good condition but only had two bedrooms on the main floor so it had to go.

Bradbury Tribute Comic

In 2012 prose anthology Shadow Show was published, collecting new stories by various writers paying tribute to the work of Ray Bradbury.

IDW Publishing took some of those stories and had them adapted into a five-issue comic book mini-series. The first Shadow Show comic was published in November 2014. The fifth and final comic is expected to be in shops on 1 April 2015.

New Garth Spencer Facebook Group: Alien Abductees Anonymous

Do you, or does someone you know, constantly feel baffled by the things people say and do? Do you, or they, fail to understand the rebuffs of alleged family, of employers, of people you want to date? Do statutory holidays and tedious clothing items and turns of speech fail to make sense? In short, do you feel like an alien on Earth, cruelly abducted from your world and people? Alien Abductees Anonymous is a mutual aid association founded in 2015 for those who want to get to the bottom of all this, find out how to cope with a people who are still evolving intelligence, and if possible, get the hell back where we belong. If you just know anyone who needs this group, let them know that you are not alone!

Aurora Award Nomination Notice

Two weeks.

For those that have already submitted your nominations, thank you. But for those that have not, there are just two weeks before we close nominations for this year’s Aurora awards. This is your chance to tell us what you liked and help it get on the ballot. This year we have created eligibility lists on our website. Check out what is eligible before you nominate.

We have also increased the number of nominations you can submit, to five (5). This means you can really tell us what was good last year.

Nominations will be open until Midnight, EDT on the 25th of April. We will be announcing the 2015 ballot at our AGM in Vancouver on the 23rd of May. Voting will begin in June.

The awards will presented at this year's Convention host, SFContario 6, November 14–16 in Toronto (<http://sfcontario.ca/>).

You must be a paid CSFFA member to nominate. For full details visit our website at: <http://www.prixaurorawards.ca/>.

VancouFur 2015 Report Part 1

Michael Bertrand

Here I am, back from VancouFur 2015. I had an awesome time. Went to a ton of panels, got to do the hotel thing, saw people I know, hung out in furry town for four days, it was fab.

Tonight, I am going to give you nice people the quick and dirty version of a con report so I can put down these memories while they are (relatively) fresh.

So tonight, I will do the panels I went to. Tomorrow, more general impressions and anecdotes.

Thursday 5 March 2015

Only did one panel. Programming didn't start till 6:30. This was the "landing" day, for people to get to the hotel, get registered, unpack their stuff, and basically get ready for the mayhem.

7 PM: Writer's Meet and Greet.

Very informal, just Tony GreyFox and a bunch of us writer wannabes shooting the breeze. But writers love to talk to other writers. There is a shared understanding, a mutual vibe to writers that is hard to define. Obviously, we're all super verbal people with a strong urge to communicate, but below that, there's something else. Maybe we all share a "storyteller" gene. Who knows. Anyhow, enjoyed the heck out of it. There should be more events in life where writers get together to just hang out and talk without anything like criticism entering into it.

Friday 6 March 2015

The first full day of programming. I was revved up and eager to go.

12 PM: General Anxiety Group. Appropriately, I was 15 minutes late for this panel, and therefore had to convince myself that it was okay to arrive late and that it would not mean that everyone would stare at me and hate me when I came in. It was a great panel, with a lot of us anxious/depressed types getting a chance to tell our stories to people who totally understood. The main leader of the panel was a hyper/anxious type (as opposed to the sluggish/anxious, like me) and I found her honesty and manic energy quite refreshing. Near the end, she was beginning to obsess over whether the panel had helped anybody and whether it had been worth doing and so forth, so I made a point of stopping her panic cycle by breaking in, then asking the audience “Do you think she did a really good job today?” and they all said yes and cheered and applauded for her.

It’s when I can make moments like that that I feel like I might be just a little bit magic.

1 PM: Flash Fiction Panel. I was not pleased with this panel. The host showed up without pens or paper for us, which you would think would be the most basic and obvious requirements, and if there had not been someone with a pad of foolscap and a plethora of pens in the audience, we would have been doomed. Plus, it was in the cleverly titled “Secret Room,” otherwise known as the hotel’s garage, where it was cold, dusty, and prone to vehicles driving in and out as we tried to write.

I am totally not making that up.

As to the actual flashing of our fictions, I took a bit of a hammering on my writer’s ego because I thought I was going to just blow everyone away, but I had forgotten that I am not good at being brief, and therefore not good at being fast. Plus I feel compelled to finish everything I start, so when the timer ran out, I was compelled to cheat and keep going for a little while. And then we had to read the thing out, and that’s a whole other set of variables.

Luckily, it turned out not to be a contest at all, so nobody judged my hasty work. We just read our stuff out loud and people either got it or didn’t.

I did the first story on paper, but the other two or three on my tablet.

I might post them here at some point.

3 PM: Writing in 3D: It’s Showtime. Had no idea what this was before I went to it, but it had writing in the title, so show up I did. Turned out to be a long and somewhat tortuous discussion of the difference between “showing” and “telling” in writing. I can’t say I learned much, but that has mostly to do with my being 41 and knowing all about the subject already. Plus, it kind of lacked focus and drive, and the older I get, the crankier I get about getting to the goddamned point.

4 PM: Self Publishing for Beginners. I’ve been to a half dozen of those kinds of panels, so it is debatable whether I am a beginner any more, but still. Picked up some leads as to where to go should I ever start writing furry fiction. Dare I unite the two worlds I live in?

I dunno. Maybe.

After this, there was nothing I wanted to attend until...

10 PM: Bad Movie Night. Obviously I just had to attend this one. Every time me and my friends get together, it's Bad Movie Night! It was, unsurprisingly, mostly MST3K/RiffTrax content. We watched a bunch of shorts, including a fave of mine Jimmy Goes to the Fair, and a movie called The Rebel Set, which I must have seen before but didn't remember. It was actually a heist film, and a half-decent one even without the MST3K treatment. Had a very compelling and sexy guy as the criminal mastermind who turns out to be the villain.

We also watched a short produced by the City of Montreal in 1948 about all the playgrounds they were building for all the children of Montreal. It gave me a heavy dose of what I will call pre-nostalgia, nostalgia for a time before you were born. It was so full of optimism and benevolence and a sense of making the world a better place for future generations! And a sense of the best kind of order, the kind that supports and protects people so they can live their lives without fear in a saner, safer, more comfortable, more affluent future.

Compared to today, when people are so shortsighted they can't even see the point of government, that 1948 seems like heaven.

Saturday and Sunday will be covered next entry.
